Mallee Family Care and Ray White Swan Hill mark 10 years of Christmas giving

Mallee Family Care is calling on the Swan Hill community to support local children this Christmas. For the 10th year, the organisation has partnered with Ray White Swan Hill on the A Little Ray of Giving campaign.

Ray White Swan Hill is accepting donations of new, unwrapped gifts for children and young people aged 0 to 18 in the lead-up to Christmas. All gifts will be passed on to Mallee Family Care, which will give them to children and young people engaged in their programs.

Mallee Family Care Chief Executive Officer Teresa Jayet said that for families experiencing hardship, Christmas can bring extra financial pressure.

"A Little Ray of Giving helps ease that pressure and gives children in the southern Mallee something to look forward to," Ms Jayet said.

"The Swan Hill community continues to show its generosity year after year. We are incredibly grateful to the Ray White Swan Hill team and to everyone who takes the time to give."

Ray White Swan Hill Principal Cameron Smits said the team is proud to partner with Mallee Family Care again.

"2026 marks 10 years of seeing Swan Hill residents get behind our campaign," Mr Smits said.

"Every gift dropped off at our office goes to a local child who might otherwise go without. Knowing that a donated gift can make Christmas morning special for those children is why this campaign matters so much to us."

Gifts can be dropped off at Ray White Swan Hill, 199 Campbell Street, between 9 am and 5 pm Monday to Friday until 8 December.

Swan Hill residents can also support Mallee Family Care's 2026 Christmas Appeal by making a tax-deductible donation at malleefamilycare.org.au/christmas.
